Nestled at the foot of the majestic Marble Mountain Range and steeped in the history of British Columbia’s “Cowboy Country”, the Big Bar Guest Ranch provides its guests with a true “western” experience.

The ranch’s many improvements include:

- “Harrison House” - a historic log structure and main family residence;
- “Coyote Lodge” - a multi-bedroom lodge;
- “Cowboy’s Inn” - providing hotel-style accommodation;
- Four individual log-frame cabins;
- Campground - including facilities building and several unique Tipi tents; and
- Auxiliary buildings including barns and corrals.

Big Bar Guest Ranch offers its guests with an authentic and rustic retreat experience with a focus on horse back riding, campfires, hiking, mountain biking, snow shoeing, canoeing, archery, camping and life on the range. Situated on a private lake, the Ranch also provides excellent fishing at this location as well as numerous nearby lakes, streams and rivers.

The current owners have completed an extensive list of upgrades and renovations to the property in recent years. This incredible opportunity is offered on a turnkey basis, including much of the livestock at an asking price of $1,495,000.
LOCATION OVERVIEW

Thompson-Nicola Regional District

The Big Bar Ranch is located within the western-most region of the Thompson-Nicola Regional District of British Columbia. This area is known for breathtaking landscapes, an abundance of recreational opportunities and a vibrant economy. The region is divided into 10 Electoral Areas and the ranch lies within the more western Electoral Area E identified as the Bonaparte Plateau. This area has long been considered the gateway to the Cariboo and is rich in Gold Rush history.

Overall, the Thompson-Nicola region has a total population of approximately 128,000 and covers an area of 44,476 square kilometers. The only cities within the regional boundaries are Kamloops, which accounts for approximately 75% of the region’s population, and Merritt, with a population of just over 7,000. The key economic business sectors in the region include forestry, agricultural and ranching, manufacturing and more recently mining and tourism.

This region has a diverse climate. The more southern portion has a semi-desert climate while the more northern portion tends to receive greater precipitation and has an all-around cooler climate, but with dry springs and summers. Rainfall is greatest in June and July (76 and 62 mm) and least in the winter and spring months with December, January, February, and March, all receiving below 10 mm.

Southern Cariboo

Located at the northwest edge of British Columbia’s Marble Mountain Range and just east of the mighty Fraser River, Big Bar Guest Ranch is within a five and a half hour drive from Vancouver and two and a half hours from Kamloops. The nearest town, the village of Clinton with a modest population of 600 residents, is less than an hour’s drive from the property.

The Southern Cariboo region has a rich history dating back to B.C.’s Gold Rush and its pioneering ranchers. Gold was discovered in the Cariboo in 1862... an event that would dramatically alter the face and character of this region. Either seeking to make their fortune, or to begin a new life, over 10,000 people traversed the Cariboo Wagon Road in the 1860’s. The sudden insurgence of population created an economic surge in both this region and on the coast and created an increased demand for cattle to feed this growing population. When ranchers saw the incredible landscape of the region with grass hillsides that seemingly stretched for miles, the area naturally became a prime ranching region of British Columbia.

Today, the area is still known for its frontier lifestyle, although ranching, tourism and forestry are now the main attractions.
PROPERTY OVERVIEW

History
In 1912, Harry Mariott emigrated to Canada and gained employment at the famous Gang Ranch, located just north and west of the Big Bar Guest Ranch. Over the subsequent years, the enterprising Mariott started acquiring small ranch holdings in the area and eventually consolidated these smaller holdings with the founding of the OK Ranching Company in 1933 with more than 200,000 acres of deeded land. In order to finance his acquisitions, Mariott was forced to take on a financial partner; a Vancouver banker by the name of George S. Harrison. As part of the agreement between the two men, Harrison parceled off a small section of these holdings that amounted to about 100 acres in a particularly beautiful spot. This property eventually became the Big Bar Guest Ranch.

Today, guests who visit the Big Bar Guest Ranch will find that many parts of the ranch have been left unchanged since the Harrison family used the ranch as their family retreat. The original family home, “The Harrison House”, built in 1936 with logs and stone hewn and selected from the property continues to stand strong today.

Keeping with historical tradition, Big Bar Guest Ranch guests have access to the original acreage of the OK Ranching Company. The Big Bar Guest Ranch offering includes 102 deeded acres with another 100 acres of private grazing lease and access to close to 230,000 acres of crown tenure for recreational/commercial use.
PROPERTY OVERVIEW

The home features a grand living room with wood burning stone fireplace, billiards hall, library, games room and TV lounge. Renovations of the Harrison House are ongoing with windows and bathrooms having been done.
